

GULDENSUPPE CASE GROWS DRAMATIC

MRS. NACK GIVES DETAILS OF THE ATROCIOUS MURDER.

Was Killed By Martin Thorn—Woman Accused of Murder Throws the Blame on Her Accomplice—Sensational Scene During the Recital of Her Story

New York, Nov. 11.—Goaded by terror and remorse, Mrs. Augusta Nack went upon the witness stand Wednesday in the Queens county courthouse and confessed that she and Martin Thorn, together had plotted the death of William Guldensuppe, the Turkish bath attendant who disappeared June 24; that she lured him to the place fixed upon for his assassination and there waited until the deed was done; that, with her accomplice, who had dismembered the body, she helped to dispose of the dreadful evidence of the crime. It was an intensely dramatic recital—begun in calmness and ending in frenzy. Step by step the wretched woman told her story. As she went on Mrs. Nack raised her voice until at last her phlegmatic, imperturbable nature could stand no longer, and she almost shrieked: "I am glad this day has come. I free my conscience." Her face became contorted and down her cheeks rolled scalding tears. Sobs convulsed her, and for a moment she could not speak. Then she continued: "No matter what comes of this, I don't care what happens to me. They can hang; they can kill. I tell all."

Under the examination of Judge Weller Mrs. Nack began her recital, leading up to the morning of Friday, June 25, the day that the crime was committed. She said she and Guldensuppe left New York between 9 and 10 o'clock that morning, and after they had crossed the ferry they boarded a trolley car, which left them at the Woodside cottage. "I had the key of the house," she said, "and I opened the front door I told Guldensuppe to enter and examine the house while I went into the yard. He went upstairs and I heard a shot. Martin Thorn came running down and when he met her he said: 'I've shot him; he's dead.' He was very excited and I was half dead," said the self-confessed murderess, breathlessly.

"What did you do then?" asked Judge Weller. "He asked me to go home and come back at 5 o'clock. When I came back that evening Thorn had everything packed in bundles. He handed me a bundle, which he said contained Guldensuppe's clothes, and he took another bundle, which was wrapped up in gray colored paper. He said that it was Guldensuppe's head, and that it was done up in plaster of paris. We took the trolley car and went over to New York on a ferryboat. When we reached New York I went home and Thorn went some other place. I cut open the bundle and found clothes."

"Whose clothes?" asked the prosecution. "William Guldensuppe's," replied the woman, emphatically. "I saw Thorn that evening again, and he told me to meet him the following morning (Saturday) at 34th street ferry."

"Where had he put the head?" "I don't know; he only told me that he had done away with it. I met him the next day at 34th street ferry and then we arranged about hiring a carriage."

The woman told in detail how the other packages were brought in the surrey and deposited in the river and the Ogden woods, near High bridge. Cross-examination by Thorn's lawyer failed to weaken Mrs. Nack's story or make her contradict herself.

During the recital Thorn listened to every word with his lips closely compressed, his hands clasped and resting on his knee. Frequently his lips became dry and parched, and occasionally he would moisten them with his tongue. His face bore that same stolid look of indifference which it has worn all through, but his eyes were unrelentful.

During her direct examination Mrs. Nack broke down and cried, but this had no effect on the prisoner, and, if anything, he seemed to enjoy her discomfort, as the old-time grin played around his mouth.

Through An Open Draw. Chicago, Nov. 11.—Engineer James Leavitt of the Chicago and Northwestern road drove his engine into the river at an open draw, just west of the Wells street passenger station, at 5:20 o'clock last evening. He escaped, but his fireman was drowned. The dead man was William Raymond, unmarried. He was stunned by the fall and drowned while several men were trying to rescue him.

NOVAK JURY OBTAINED.

Taking of Testimony Begun in Iowa's Sensational Murder Case.

Vinton, Iowa, Nov. 11.—The twelve men who will weigh the evidence in the sensational Novak murder trial were chosen and passed upon Wednesday afternoon.

County Attorney Tobin briefly outlined the case against the defendant. The indictment contains two counts, one charging that death was caused by some person and the other that death was caused by a wound on the head, inflicted with a weapon, to the grand jury unknown. The evidence, said Mr. Tobin, will be circumstantial.

Attorney Ney briefly outlined the defense, the substance of which will be that the circumstances shown are not sufficient to justify a conviction. The defense will dwell strongly on the fact, that no motive can be shown for killing Murray.

It is plainly evident that the state will be compelled at once to take up the question of the corpus delicti. Fully fifty witnesses will be called to testify on this point.

VIOLATE INSURANCE LAW.

Complaints Are Made in Michigan Against Certain Companies.

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 11.—Recently complaints have been made that many farmers in Ingham, Eaton and Shiawassee counties have been ruined by their efforts to carry insurance on the lives of aged persons. It was thought that all companies issuing this kind of policy had been driven from the state by a recent act, but it is learned that much business of this nature has been done recently. Many farmers have paid hundreds of dollars in assessments, and in case of the death of the insured have realized less than half of the sum paid in.

Insurance Commissioner Campbell is investigating these complaints, and thus far has found them to be founded on fact. As soon as he secures the necessary evidence he will proceed against the violators, but until then declines to state what companies are issuing the policies.

Henry George Memorial.

New York, Nov. 11.—William Jennings Bryan has contributed $100 to the Henry George memorial fund. He telegraphed that it gave him great pleasure to add his name to the subscription roll. Many of the subscriptions that have come in are from children. It has been decided to make the Henry George memorial fund a popular one. That all may do so, a popular subscription of 10 cents has been fixed. Larger amounts will be just as acceptable, but the managers of the fund feel that Henry George's memory would be more appropriately honored by a fund that was within reach of the multitude.

Gen. Harrison presides and the speakers will be the members of the home-mission committee.

Fever Has Run Its Course.

New Orleans, Nov. 11.—Very little interest is now being taken in the yellow fever situation. Few cases and deaths are being daily reported and the people are looking to the time when the plague will have ceased to exist. SPAIN'S SIDE TOLD IN THE DISPATCH

SAGASTA'S POSITION EXPLAINED AT WASHINGTON.

Means to Be Just to Cuba—Senor Canalejas Says There Is Not Serious Thought in Spain of War With the United States—Expects Much From Gen. Blanco

Washington, Nov. 11.—Senor Jose Canalejas, one of the foremost public men of Spain; editor of El Heraldo of Madrid, former minister of justice in the liberal ministry and closely identified with Premier Sagasta, the new liberal regime in Spain, arrived in Washington Wednesday, accompanied by Captain Vega and Mr. Alexander Saint Aubin of Madrid.

While the visit is unofficial, much interest attaches to it among public men, owing to Senor Canalejas' intimate knowledge of conditions at the Spanish capital, and also for the facility it affords for conference between him and Senor Dupuy de Lome, the Spanish minister.

Senor Canalejas expressed himself as little acquainted with conditions here, but as to those in Madrid he spoke freely.

"The feeling there is one of expectancy, but there is little or no feeling that a serious crisis will present itself between the United States and Spain, and there is no thought in well-informed circles that extreme measures or a resort to war will result. On the contrary, the action of the Spanish government has given every hope of a continuance of the most friendly relations with the United States and of a satisfactory conclusion of the Cuban conflict."

"A complete change of policy has resulted from the accession of the liberal ministry, and the aggressive policy executed by Gen. Weyler is now succeeded by the more conciliatory methods of that peaceful soldier, Gen. Blanco."

"As to the autonomy which Spain now offers to Cuba, it is autonomy of the genuine character, and it is tendered in the sincerest good faith, believing that it affords the surest guaranty of restoring peace to Cuba and giving prosperity to the island."

"In all international affairs the autonomy now offered will give the Cuban people entire freedom in shaping their own affairs. With such a policy in view, and with Gen. Blanco to put it into execution there is every assurance that Spain will do all in her power to restore peace and prosperity in Cuba. Moreover, we look with confidence on the success of that policy. We are naturally desirous that our friends in the United States should recognize the complete change of policy which has occurred, and should co-operate with us in having it bring beneficial results we look for."

America Replies to Spain.

Madrid, Nov. 11.—It is asserted here that the reply of the American government to the last Spanish communication declares that the United States has made the greatest efforts to stop filibustering and has employed many officials and expended large sums of money to that end.

May Recover Over 6 Per Cent.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 11.—The Court of Appeals overruled a petition for rehearing the case of Simpson vs. the Kentucky Citizens' Building and Loan association, in which it holds unconstitutional the act of 1893, under which the associations cannot charge more than 6 per cent. Under the decision borrowers who have heretofore paid in excess of 6 per cent may bring suit to recover. The decision is declared to be a hard blow to the associations, and it is doubtful if building and loan organizations can be successfully conducted in this state under it.

END OF THE STRIKE IS NOW IN SIGHT

PROSPECTS OF PROLONGED PEACE IN ILLINOIS.

Chinese Are Not to Come—Settlements Have Been Effected at Five Of the Large Mines and Two More Are Likely to Resume at the Compromise Rate.

Braidwood, Ill., Nov. 11.—With three mines running, two more to resume operations at once, and still two more that may make settlements within the next forty-eight hours, it seems that the end of the strike of the miners in the northern Illinois district is in sight.

Apparently all that can now stop a general resumption is the contingency that the Braidwood and Spring Valley men may be able to control the convention in Streator and pass a resolution and call upon the men that have gone back to come out again and stand for the original Springfield scale. It is a question, however, is such an order would be obeyed.

Following the lead of Braceville, which is the largest mine, in point of number of men employed, in the Wilmington district, the men at Carbon Hill, including the Italians have voted solidly to go to work. There has been a surrender on both sides, but the men will receive the same rate—77½ cents a ton over seven-eighths inch screens—the same as the men at Braceville, and the company has made other concessions.

As these were the mines in which it was intended to place Chinamen, that question has been disposed of for the time being, and there is a decided feeling of relief all about here. There is no doubt that there would have been a serious conflict had these Chinese put in an appearance, and that it would have been accompanied by the loss of life.

Before leaving for Streator State Secretary Ryan said he would not be surprised to see the entire district resume at the 77½ cents rate.

THE STREATOR CONVENTION.

President of United Mineworkers Addresses the Gathering.

Streator, Ill., Nov. 11.—The convention of delegates representing the miners of northern Illinois met here Wednesday afternoon. Delegates were present from Clark City, Seatonville, Braidwood, Spring Valley, Minonk, Kargley, Streator, LaSalle, Toluca and other points, representing the entire field.

The principal feature of the session was an address by M. D. Ratcliff, national president of the United Mine Workers. He said the organization in ordering the recent strike had gained increased wages for 75,000 miners, which was a greater achievement than any other trade union of the time had accomplished, the average increase in wages being 22 per cent. At no time were there more than 100,000 idle miners, while 200,000 were working. The product from this district goes into one great competitive market, said he, and advised the miners to forget all sectional feeling, which has done more to ruin the success of the miners than anything else. He referred to the gross-weight law, and said it was the duty of the miners to see it was enforced. The question in northern Illinois was twofold. The change in system was of more importance than gaining a few cents a ton in price. The latter would regulate itself.

May Be a Factor in Politics.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 11.—Chairman of the Press Committee Chamberlain said last night that the Knights of Labor, whose general assembly is in session here, would cut a big figure in the next national election. "We are growing all the time," said he, "and we intend to vote against politicians who are in politics for office. We want men in office who will better the condition of the laboring man and who are right on economic questions. During the past year over 20,000 members have been added to the order."

Likelihood That the German Reichstag Will Be Liberal.

Berlin, Nov. 11.—The result of the municipal bye election at West Preignitz, province of Brandenburg, where Herr Schulz, the radical candidate, has been elected by a vote of 7,481 against 5,999 cast for Herr Sakdern, the conservative candidate, is highly significant of what is likely to happen at the general reichstag elections. The radical organs exultantly declare that the next reichstag will be the most radical Germany has ever seen. It looks now as if the prediction would be fulfilled.

Missionaries in Great Peril.

Tacoma, Wash., Nov. 11.—Missionaries have been attacked by angry mobs in Hunan province, Central China. In one instance a mob of 5,000 surrounded a party of missionaries and was held in check by local police with great difficulty. The authorities telegraphed to Canton for assistance and 1,000 soldiers were hurried to their relief. Meager reports so far received do not give the names of missionaries attacked by this mob, but they are supposed to belong to the Christian Missionary alliance, which has been trying all summer to establish a mission in Hunan. While thus engaged several months ago Missionaries Brown and Chapin were killed and stoned by a mob and picked up for dead.

The total expenditures amounted to $1,130,169.11, leaving a balance of $1,771.56. This deducted from the net indebtedness of $187,914.34 on Nov. 1 of last year leaves the present net indebtedness $186,142.78. During the year $44,629.05 was received as special gifts.

Want the Militia Called Out.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 11.—Gov. Mount is being urged to call out the militia to stop the investors in oil lands in this state from wasting natural gas. The contest is between the gas companies and the citizens of the state, who want the gas saved, on the one side, and the investors in oil lands on the other. The governor says he is willing to take any step within reason to stop the waste, but he does not see how the militia could be of service, as according to the reports before him gas is escaping from about 9,000 wells in the state.

WOLCOTT IS HOPEFUL.

Still Thinks Silver Negotiations May Prove Successful.

Washington, Nov. 11.—Senator Wolcott since his return has been extremely reticent about his recent trip abroad and refuses to see members of the press. The senator has made an informal statement to the president, explaining why the commission failed. He is not yet without hope of success, and has explained how near the commission was to bringing about a favorable reply. Senator Wolcott said that when everything was going along nicely and it seemed as if the British cabinet would go as far as had been promised, reopening the Indian mints and consenting to a conference, the press of Great Britain and the bankers of London, criticised the cabinet so severely that it was compelled to take a course contrary to which the commission had expected.

PAPERS STILL TALK
OF BANK EXAMINERDISCUSSION AS TO THE POWER OF OFFICER.

Times-Herald Dispatch Says the Law Is Lamentably Lacking and That a New One Will Be Enacted—Milwaukee German Paper Scores Mr. Kidd.

A Milwaukee dispatch to the Chicago Times-Herald says:

"The matter of the Edgerton Bank failure has caused no little talk, and there has been considerable criticism of Bank Examiner Kidd because he did not close the bank up a year ago when he found that certain irregularities had not been corrected."

"While Mr. Kidd will have to take his share of the blame, it has been made very clear that the law regarding the examination of banks in the state is lamentably lacking in just those features which it was supposed to possess. Up to the time of the Edgerton failure the popular impression was that the powers of the state bank examiner were about the same as those of the United States comptroller, and that he could close a bank at any time which he found to be in a bad state."

New Law in Prospect.

"It now appears that all the bank examiner can do when he finds anything wrong in a bank, is to order the officials to make it right. In case they do not do this in thirty days, he can publish a statement of the bank's condition in a paper published in that town or vicinity. That is the extent of his authority. It also appears that an attempt was made last winter to get a law passed giving the bank examiner power to close any bank that was not solvent. The law was defeated, and among its most active opponents were many of those who are now criticizing the bank examiner most severely."

"It is not only probable, but positively certain, that the next legislature will pass a law that will make the bank examiner something more than a traveling auditor. There will, it is said, also have to be a change in the office, so as to give sufficient force to keep the state banks under a closer supervision."

Milwaukee Paper's Story.

Der Herold, the Milwaukee German daily, publishes an article relative to the necessity of investigating State Bank Examiner Kidd's course in regard to the Edgerton bank which failed recently as a result of bad methods. Der Herold says:

"The suspension of the bank of Edgerton, Wis., may lead to an official investigation which may cause trouble to State Bank Examiner Kidd. State Treasurer Peterson is the authority before which the case will come and his decision is final. Under the law of 1895 the state and private banks are under the jurisdiction of the bank examiner, who is to investigate the condition of the banks, and it is said that Mr. Peterson is making an inquiry to see whether an investigation about the conduct of the bank examiner is necessary."

Shortly after the suspension of the Edgerton bank, a rumor was circulated that Bank Inspector Kidd, who made three calls on the bank to inform himself of its condition, but had not proceeded with sufficient vigor, so that the depositors may save nothing from the wreck of the bank. These rumors were given a definite form and may be summed up in the following:

A Summing Up.

"1. During the examination of the bank last year, Mr. Kidd found in the books of the bank an item of $100,000, for which no official of the bank could give an explanation."

"2. That notwithstanding this suspicious circumstance no further inquiry was made except that the bank officials were warned to keep their books in better order."

"3. When Mr. Kidd examined the bank during September last, he found the books in the same condition as they had been last year. The change of system recommended by him had not been made. This obvious disregard of his directions caused him to do nothing more than to repeat the warning of last year that the books should be put in better condition."

"The dissatisfaction with the bank inspector is the greatest in and about Edgerton, and against Bank Examiner Kidd the people feel very bitter. It is argued that it was the duty of the bank inspector to cause at once an investigation when coming upon the item of $100,000 the first time. As inspector he had a right to examine the bank once in three months, and people are unable to understand why this was not done. It is not believed that the bankruptcy could have been averted."

ed by a close examination of the methods of the bank, but it is believed that thousands of dollars would have been saved for the depositors.

"In political circles it is conceded that the outlook is not very favorable for Mr. Kidd, and further developments are looked for with interest."

A Banker's Views.

A prominent Milwaukee banker said that he did not believe that Mr. Kidd was guilty of real negligence. When national bank examiners are sometimes fooled he said, "and occasionally we hear of a national bank's failing. When Mr. Kidd examines our bank, he does his work very thoroughly, even going to the trouble of writing to our cashiers correspondents and verifying our statements. I think he either knew about that $100,000 you speak of or else the bank authorities succeeded in deceiving him."

"As a matter of fact, the law by which the bank examiner is appointed is unconstitutional, inasmuch as it has not yet been submitted to the people. The original bank law was voted on by the people and hence every amendment must be also submitted to popular vote. If any banker told Bank Examiner Kidd to get out of his office and refused to let him see his books, Kidd could not enforce his demands. One of the leading state officials told me the other day that the bank examiner had rights only by consent of the banks; that he had no real power. But I think Kidd is as a rule quite thorough in his examinations."

THIEF REPENTED HIS ACT

So He Sent Word to the Woman He Had Robbed.

Three weeks ago a stranger entered the store of Stone & Osborn at Milton Junction, and said he wished to leave a satchel and a banjo while he waited for a train. He failed to call for them at train time, and they remained there until this week Monday, when a Mrs. Miller, who lives near Madison, came and proved the property to be hers. She said that a hired man had stolen the banjo and also some jewelry, and his conscience refusing to be settled he had written her from eastern Illinois, telling her where to look for her property. She went to Milton Junction and secured it.

SEE "THE NANCY HANKS" TONIGHT

Marie Jensen Will Appear in the Leading Part.

Marie Jensen, one of America's most charming and popular comedienne, "The Nancy Hanks," a comedy fresh from its last season's triumphs and Frank Tannehill, Jr., comedian, co-star with Miss Jensen in "The Nancy Hanks" and author of the play, are three names which bring many bright anticipations of enjoyment and pleasure into the minds of theatre goers who delight in bright, crisp dialogue, extravagantly humorous situations and complications, pretty and fascinating women swell "gowns" and admirably rendered songs. This big three combination is announced to appear at the Myers Grand this evening, and one can safely predict that the box-office receipts will fall little short of the figure which represents the capacity of the theatre. The Nancy Hanks comes highly recommended. It was one of the very few productions made last season which stood the test of critical audiences and the financial depression and returned its author and promoters a profit. The critics with almost universal accord credit the author with having written a capital comedy, with so many invitations to laugh from start to finish that interest never lags and with so many instances of spontaneous applause that the characters are assisted to exceptional speed. It is something new in the way of comedy.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

1820—The Mayflower compact signed in Cape Cod harbor. The voyagers before landing signed a compact under which they became, as a body politic, subject "to such government and governors as shall by common consent be chosen."

1781—John Abercrombie, the most eminent Scotch physician and medical author of his time, born at Aberdeen; died 1844.

1806—State serfs emancipated in Poland.

1830—Lucretia Mott, American reformer and philanthropist, died near Philadelphia; born 1768.

1886—Paul Bert, distinguished French savant, died at Hanoi, Annam; born 1833.

1886—Charles H. Bell, ex-governor of New Hampshire, died at Exeter, N. H.; born 1833.

A statement compiled from the official records of the government prepared by a free trade democrat show that during Cleveland's last term the farmers of the country lost more than a billion dollars a year by decreased consumption and decreased value of products.

The Rock county asylum paid its own running expenses last year and is ready to put something into the sinking fund toward paying the cost of construction. If the supervisors would only arrange a jail of the same sort!

With a hundred thousand tons of Alabama coal going to Mexico for the use of her railway locomotives in competition with English coal, it looks as if a new field is open to the south for her rich products.

With all the vituperations against the Dingley law, we haven't heard any wish expressed yet to return to the beneficent provisions of the Wilson law.

Shopiere Nov. 11—The Royal Neighbors of Magnet Camp, 192, Shopiere, have been invited by Janesville Camp, 132, to attend a fair to be held in their hall on Nov. 17 and 18, entertainment and supper. The male members of the Congregational church met at the church sheds on Wednesday last to pair the same. A good thing for the horses as winter is coming. Robert Cole dislocated his shoulder while working on the church sheds. The offer supper that was advertised for Wednesday, Nov. 10, on account of bad weather, was postponed for one week, which will be Wednesday, Nov. 17. Don't forget Mrs. John Black's auction, Monday, Nov. 15. Henry Case will soon move to the Steadwell farm, that was bought by Ed Case, of Irving park. Corn shreaders are getting pretty thick around here. Barker has just purchased one of the McCormick make.

Sup. Powers introduced a resolution asking the district attorney to give his opinion on the traveling fees of the sheriff. Under his contract with the county the sheriff is entitled to mileage together with other expenses in all cases outside of the county. A petition of P. Norcross for a rebate of taxes in the town of Fulton was referred to the committee on illegal taxes, who subsequently reported in favor of refunding the amount asked for.

Balance on hand this date, $1766.53. The committee recommended that the sum of $3,600 be appropriated for disbursement by the commission the same as last year.

MAY NOT SETTLE
THE JAIL MATTERNO AGREEMENT HAS YET BEEN REACHED

Supervisor Who Knows Says the Question Is Likely to Be Put Off Until the January Meeting—Cost Would Be About $25,000—Today's Proceedings.

Trustee of County Asylum and Poor Farm For Three Years — C. E. LANGWORTHY At 3:45 o'clock this afternoon, the county board voted not to build a jail.

The vote stood 27 ayes and 8 nays. The matter will now come before the January meeting.

A motion was also carried to invite the state board of control here before the next meeting in order that they might again inspect the present jail.

A supervisor who knows what he is talking about said this morning that he did not think a new jail would be decided upon at this session of the board. Many of the members, he said, did not feel that the county could stand the expense. He predicted that the matter would be laid over until the January meeting.

The board was called to order at 9:30 this morning by Robt. More, chairman. A quorum was present. The Journal of yesterday was read and approved. Committee No. 7 on building a jail made their report. Supervisor Bailey from the committee made a verbal statement in regard to the matter and then introduced Mr. Louis of Saint Louis who represents the Pauli Jail Co. Mr. Lewis stated that $25,000 would be enough to build a jail adapted to the needs of the county.

Supervisor Bailey then made a motion that the matter be made the special order for 2 p. m.

At 1:30 o'clock this afternoon the matter of a new jail was taken up. Architect R. G. Kirch of Milwaukee, was introduced to the board and explained plans for a structure to cost $26,000. He stated that his firm were ready to give bonds for the fulfillment of the estimate, to.

Thomas C. Lewis in the interest of the Pauli Jail company, of Milwaukee was the second speaker.

Plans For Repairs
Mr. Pauly was present to submit plans for the remodeling of the present structure at a cost not to exceed $12,000.

This plan would provide a jail that would be safe and accommodate fifty prisoners.

The special order for the 11 o'clock hour was taken up, it being bills No. 198 and 129 from Drs. Whiting for $50 and $87.40 respectively. Supervisor Bowles moved that bill No. 198 be allowed at $30 and bill 129 at $52.40. Adopted.

Supervisor Smith from committee No. 10 reported on general claims and moved the adoption of the report. Supervisor Powers, from committee No. 10, reported on bills No. 235 and 236—of Superintendents Ross and Throne—without recommendation. Report adopted.

The reading of the bills was called for, and they were read. Supervisor James moved that the bills be laid over until the January meeting. Carried.

Supervisor Bear introduced a resolution in regard to the salary of county officers, and to appoint a committee. Carried.

The chair announced as such committee Supervisors Bear, Powers and White.

Supervisor Cleophas moved that the board proceed to the election of a trustee of the insane in place of Trustee Davis.

Supervisor Powers moved that the first ballot be informal.

The ballots stood:

COURT HEARS ABOUT
THE CRICHTON WILL

TRIAL OF THE CASE BEGUN BEFORE JUDGE SALE.

Neighbors and Acquaintances Say They Did Not Consider the Dead Man Competent at the Time the Document Was Drawn—Family Got But $1.

The "Crichton will case" is now on trial before Judge Sale in the county court. D. M. Barless, George Skinner and George Goocher, neighbors and acquaintances, testified that they did not think Mr. Crichton was competent to make a will.

Mrs. Crichton, the son and two daughters were given $1 apiece and the $8,000 estate went to Mrs. Margaret Davidson, a sister, Miss Margaret K. Davidson a niece, and Louis Green a nephew.

Mrs. Davidson and Miss Davidson live in this city.

John Crichton died about six weeks ago at the home of William Austin, corner of Prospect avenue and Bluff street. Several years ago his wife got a divorce on the ground of cruelty and he never forgave her or the children. He claimed they all sided with their mother against him and it was not a surprise to them, therefore, when they were cut off with $1 apiece in the will.

The ground on which they protest against the confirmation of the will is that the testator was addicted to drink and was not responsible or competent to make a will at the time the instrument was drawn.

The contestants are represented by Jackson & Jackson and Dunwiddie & Wheeler while the proponents are represented by Smith & Pierce.

The contesting heirs are Mrs. Crichton, Thomas C. Crichton of Watworth, Mrs. Anne Oakley and Mrs. Margaret Moriarty of Milton.

Most of the property conveyed by the will is in the form of real estate.

The case was adjourned until Monday morning, by consent, this afternoon.

OSHKOSH MEN ARE JAILED

The District Attorney Charges Them With Manslaughter

Oshkosh, Wis., Nov. 11.—[Special]

Warrants will be issued today for Frank Kitz, of the firm of Maulick & Kitz, saloonkeepers, and also for Nix Marx, bartender, and Abe Munich, a hanger on.

The charge against them is manslaughter. The complaint is sworn to by District Attorney Quartermass, who alleges that the three men caused the death of John Webster, who died at the police station a few mornings ago from the effects of whisky, cold and exposure.

The testimony before the coroner's jury was to the effect that Nunch bought eleven glasses of whisky for Webster and that when he became helpless they left him in the back alley. The three men were placed under arrest this morning.

UPPER MILL CLOSES DOWN

Machines to Be Silent For a Time At Least.

Saturday night the upper cotton mill will close down, throwing twenty-five hands out of work.

Three weeks ago, the mill, after several weeks of illness, started up to run until the raw cotton on hand was utilized. Directors say that the closing of the mill Saturday night is on account of the present lull in the market.

The lower mill at Monterey will continue to run at full force.

MAY NOT REBUILD THE MILL

D. K. Jeffris Is In Doubt About Future Movements

David K. Jeffris, of Jeffris, Wis., is in the city. In speaking of the recent fire in which the large saw mill was destroyed, Mr. Jeffris says that it is doubtful whether or not the mill will be rebuilt.

The insurance on the same amounting to $10,750 has been paid. About 8,000,000 feet of lumber that was to have been sawed at Jeffris will be taken to Tomahawk.

FARMER BOYS JOIN
THE LOCAL Y. M. C. A.

NEW IDEA TO BE PUT IN OPERATION.

Committee Appointed to Canvass the Territory About the City to Secure Members—Special Rate Is Made, and Work Will Be Pushed Systematically.

Plans to induce farmer boys to join the local Y. M. C. A., are now being made by the local board. The present idea is to appoint fourteen canvassing agents in the territory surrounding Janesville for a radius of twelve miles.

Men who have already been appointed to take the work in hand are well known sons of Rock county farmers, among them being: Rush Iman, Emerald Grove; J. W. Atkinson, Afton; Frank Hugunit, town of Janesville; C. H. Howard, Shopiere; George Austin, Johnston; Harlin Fitch, Footville; D. D. Brace, Fulton; and George McLay, La Prairie.

The remaining six members will be appointed at once and the work of making an earnest and thorough canvass will be begun at once.

The idea is to make the farmer a most welcome guest whenever he chances to come to town. A special rate of $3 a year will be made which is in itself a strong inducement.

Those who do not become members will be made to feel at home in the building when they come to town and will be given several privileges free of charge, as before, but every inducement is held out to members. The first meeting of the members of the canvassing committee has been called for Nov. 27 at 4 p. m.

THE FIRST SNOWFALL

The snow had begun in the gloaming
And busily all the night
Had been heaping field and highway
With a silence deep and white.

Every pine and fir and hemlock
Wore ermine too dear for an earl,
And the poorest twig on the elm tree
Was ridged in deep with pearl.

From sheds now roofed with Carrara
Came chattering the muffled crow,
The stiff rails were softened to swansdown
And still fluttered down to snow.

I stood and watched by the window
The noiseless work of the sky,
And the sudden flurries of snowbirds,
Like brown leaves whirling by.

I thought of a mound in sweet Auburn
Where a little headstone stood;
How the flakes were folding it gently
As did robins the babes in the wood.

Up spoke our own little Mabel,
Saying, "Father, who makes it snow?"
And I told of the good All-Father
Who cares for us here below.

Again I looked at the snowfall
And thought of the laden sky
That arched o'er our first great sorrow
When that mound was heaped so high.

I remember the gradual patience
That fell from that cloudlike snow,
Flake by flake, healing and hiding
The scar of our deep plunged woe.

And again to the child I whispered,
"The snow that husheth all,
Darling, the merciful Father
Alone can make it fall."

Then, with eyes that saw not, I kissed her,
And my kissing back, could not know
That my kiss was given to her sister,
Folded close under deepening snow.

—James Russell Lowell.

PHEMIE.

"It's no use trying," said Phemie.
"Mother hates me, and everything I do is wrong."

"Your mother can't help it, Phemie," said Dr. Jasper. He was the new medical man, in huge favor with Mrs. Albatross, Phemie's mother.

"Your mother is highly strung—quite a woman of genius, and allowances must be made for her temperament, my dear young lady. Temperament rules everything."

Indeed, Mrs. Albatross' temperament seemed to rule Dr. Jasper, the parson, the squire, the parish, but it did not rule Phemie.

"Look here," said the girl—she was just past 20—"you and mother are always croaking about me. I know, but you do nothing to help me. At least I think you would, but you're afraid."

"Your mother used to take an interest in you, but you did not meet her half way. Is not that so?"

"No, it isn't. When I was 16, she had a fad of dressing me up in last century costume and making a doll of me—not my style at all—just to show off her own cleverness and queerness at my expense. She said I was ugly and only dressing could make me fit to be seen."

"Well?" said Dr. Jasper, who was a rising young medico of 30, as he looked gravely and judicially at the pretty much tried girl, who only half believed in his good will.

"Well," said Phemie, "every one laughed, and I showed mother I would not stand it."

"And then?"

"Then she packed me off to school. The mistress said I was sort of dazed for a time, as if I had been ill treated—and so I had—and quite neglected, but they were kind to me there, and I was very happy for more than a year, except in the holidays, which were always odious. Then you came along"—And Phemie paused and stole a doubtful glance at the doctor.

"What then?" said the doctor, like a person coldly inquiring for ordinary information, yet with a certain little twinkle in his eye which did not escape the aggrieved Phemie.

"Then," said the girl, "I thought you were my friend at first, but I don't now. At least"—

At this moment Mrs. Albatross entered, and, turning sharply on Phemie, said with a snap, "I suppose you haven't fed the fowls or sorted the linen or done anything but idle away your time, as usual?"

"I was called when Dr. Jasper came because you could not be found."

"I'm sick of your excuses. Dr. Jasper does not want to see you." Then, in quite an altered tone, as Phemie shrunk away out of the room: "Do you mind coming up to my sitting room? I want to have a talk with you about those changes at the infirmary. I am sure you will agree with me and you will be most useful. We can't allow things to go on," etc.

Dr. Jasper always did agree with Mrs. Albatross, but somehow he molded her, and she usually came round to his opinion. He listened and she talked. He could wait, and when he had taken her bearings—without ever interrupting or contradicting—she listened and he talked, and not then, but next time, she echoed his opinions and fancied they were all her own.

"It is such a comfort to find a sensible man to talk to in a stupid place like this," said she, laying her arm confidently upon the doctor's as he sat smiling and agreeing with her.

Mrs. Albatross had worried one husband into the grave—she was too clever for him—but her intellectual vivacity, imagination and enterprise made her an interesting companion. She was only a little past 40, and very well preserved, and she meant to marry Dr. Jasper.

Whether it was hypnotism or will power the doctor came again and again and would not send in his bill, and the doctor's bill never was paid. He paid himself.

"Don't speak to me," said Phemie hurriedly as she met the doctor coming down stairs after a long confab with her mother. "Mother's about. She's out all tomorrow afternoon. I've got to paint the doors"—And Jasper passed out with a sympathetic smile. She knew he would call and advise her about painting the doors. He did call.

"What a deal you know about mixing paints and things! I'm sure I want good advice a great deal more than mother does. But, then, I'm not clever like mother," added Phemie, with a little aggrieved pout. "So it's not worth while talking to me."

"I do feel for you," said the doctor with an unusual warmth of manner. "I have done all I could to get you mother to be fair to you, Phemie"—He had never called her Phemie before and she felt her color rise. "What's the matter?" he added, hastily, for suddenly Phemie's eyes filled with tears, and she just went off then and there and left the paint pots and things without saying another word.

Dr. Jasper's visits became more frequent. Mrs. Albatross was constant about the village with him. They met in cottages. She was devoted, she said, to nursing the sick. It was certainly a new development. She never seen with her daughter, nor Dr. Jasper, but he saw her daughter often and than she knew. Still it seemed less and less possible to do without Mrs. Albatross. Her ability, her cooked foods and port wine for "cases," her influence with the squire, who disliked and obeyed her; with the parson, whose good will was important to the doctor and who was afraid of Mrs. Albatross, for she browbeat him in the chair at parish meetings, picked holes in his sermons and organized the penny readings, which he disliked, under his very nose—all this and a good deal more—for Mrs. Albatross was a woman and not above feminine arts—put Jasper in rather a tight place.

He knew that Mrs. Albatross wanted to marry him, and there were days—yes, whole days—when he really thought he should be obliged to marry Mrs. Albatross.

The moment came. It was in the little sitting room up stairs. Something had happened. Dr. Jasper saw that plainly enough.

The lady was flushed and excited, and he missed the usual confidential hand squeeze.

"I—I wanted to see you," she said and paused. "Nothing has come to your ears, I suppose?"

The doctor looked inquiringly.

"Well, then, I'm dreadfully troubled, annoyed beyond measure, put out. Of course, you know my maid, Susan. She has been with me ten years and is not a gossip!"

"What on earth do you mean? Do be plain. Surely with me you might be quite plain." And he moved a little nearer, feeling at that moment a curious kind of attraction which almost compelled him to lay his hand upon her arm and force her to be quite honest.

"Don't keep me on tenterhooks," he said eagerly. "Tell me!"

"I will," said the lady. "I feel I can tell you anything. I don't think I have any other friend in the world—at least, not like you. No one understands me, no one has helped me as you have, and we've got to part. That is all!"

"What on earth," said Jasper, really shaken and troubled—he had never seen her grow pale like that or her lips quiver like that, and she was not of the crying sort, and she did not cry now—"what—what has Susan been saying?"

"Only that it's all over the place, and that she thought at last she ought to tell me!"

"You don't mean, you don't mean"—He couldn't quite say it.

"Yes, I do," she said. And she rose and walked up and down the room full of a sort of angry vexation, mingled evidently with a conflict of passionate feeling she could neither conceal nor subdue.

"Sit down," he said. He had risen. He took her arm. She was positively trembling. He led her to the sofa by the fire.

"I shall have to leave this place," she said in a sort of hard voice. The angry tears came into her eyes. He had never seen her weep. This was the nearest approach to it.

"I know what you are going to say. Don't say it. No, you shan't go. You are useful. The people trust you. It is your sphere. I am the marplot."

"Why should you go?" said Jasper, hardly measuring his words. "Why should either of us go? Why not stay—and stay—stay together?"

"You don't mean it?" Men at such times are more fools than knaves.

"Yes, yes—I do."

Jasper had taken her hand. The woman with the iron will, the keen intellect, the nature self contained, which seemed at times as hard as nails, turned toward him and in another moment fell crying and laughing hysterically into his arms. At that moment, as ill luck would have it, Phemie, hearing unusual sounds and thinking some one needed assistance, entered.

"Go and fetch some sal volatile. Your mother is not very well." Indeed, at that moment Mrs. Albatross seemed to have really fainted away. Whether she fainted or not no one will ever know. The doctor himself was doubtful.

Jasper never entered the house again. He went home, packed up his things, wrote a hurried note in a disguised hand to Phemie, who on the following day would be 21 years old and came into £500 a year, which had been left her, to the disgust of her mother, by her fond father—and Jasper went to bed.

He must have risen early. No one at his lodgings saw him go out. His hot water was brought up at 8 o'clock. His boots had not been put out over night.

The servant knocked again at 9. The door was not locked. She entered. She saw boxes packed and labeled "Left till called for." The bed was empty.

The station was a mile off. There were only two passengers by the early train.

When Mrs. Albatross came down to breakfast she inquired for Phemie. Phemie was gone.—Sketch.

THE MODE.

What True Fashion Elegance Means—A Question of Personality.

True elegance and fashion consist not in servilely copying the mode, but in adopting it so far as is suitable to the individual, yet so freely and independently that one's wardrobe is individual and imbued with one's own personality. The mode should be modified into an attribute, not regarded as an abstract standard which all must follow alike. To wear an ugly or unbecoming thing simply because it is the mode is to do a foolish thing. The purpose of dress, from the aesthetic point of view, is to accentuate one's good points and conceal one's defects, and unless it does this it is a failure, whether it be according to the mode or not.

For example, blouse jackets are now in style and are often very picturesque and elaborate, but they should never be worn except by slender women, as they increase the apparent size of the figure and cause a plump woman to seem clumsy. On the other hand, tight jackets, with long, close basques, are trying for a slim form, as they make it look longer and narrower.

The materials which will be employed this winter for evening gowns—dinner, reception and ball costumes—are of the utmost richness. Satin, broche silk and brocade, enhanced with embroidery of gold, beads and spangles and glaze and moire velvets, are some of the favored goods. Tabliers, panels, boleros and corslets are often covered with embroidery.

A novelty in winter coats is the blouse redingote, which is shown in the illustration. It is of heavy boucle material and closes at the left side, the bodice being decorated with two large buttons. There is one revers of velvet, and the high rolling collar is lined with velvet. The sleeves are close and plain and have velvet revers at the wrists. The belt is of velvet, fastening with a buckle. The garment is lined throughout with quilted satin.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

WINTER SKIRTS.

Skirt Trimming—How to Lengthen Short Skirts—An Evening Cape.

Now that skirts are so frequently decorated around the top with bands of trimming and yoke or apron effects the means for freshening and modernizing old skirts are many. The upper part may be made of entirely different goods, velvet or silk, the junction being concealed under a band of fur, embroidery or galloon. A plaid skirt may have a plain top; a skirt of plain goods may have a plaid top. This upper portion may be cut straight around or may be curved or pointed.

The foot of skirts is often cut in squares, points or scallops, which are allowed to fall over an under piece of velvet or other material or a plaiting of silk. This is an excellent method of lengthening short skirts.

Skirts are seen arranged to open over panels or plaited fans at the side. Another way of securing variety is to button the tablier down to the body of the skirt by paste, steel or other decorative buttons.

Although the most elegant costumes have now the skirt and bodice of one color, these are not by any means necessarily of the same material. Skirts of satin, broche silk or velvet often accompany a bodice of mouseline de soie, crepe de chine or chiffon of the same tint, or the bodice may be of velvet, with a satin or silk skirt.

For evening costumes velvet and mouseline de soie will be much used in combination this winter and will compose some very elegant toilets.

The illustration given today shows a short evening cape. It has a yoke of old red velvet, heavily embroidered with gold and silver. On this is mounted the pelerine of chinchilla fur, the whole being lined with quilted coral satin. The valois collar, which is embroidered in one with the yoke, is bordered with chinchilla.

It's a Pleasure

For us to show you through the Cloak stock, and it must be a source of satisfaction to you to know that there is such a strong line at your doors as we carry. People from out of town give us credit for showing much the best line in this section; and we doubt if Wisconsin can produce another cloak department with so great a display as ours. By great we do not mean floor space, but rather the number of new garments and the great variety of the styles. Controlling so many sample lines enables us at all times to show a large number of novelties so entirely at variance with ordinary lines that comparisons are out of the question. As regards price, it is so well known that we save you a third on every coat that the mention of it seems almost unnecessary.

That new line of plush and velour Capes offers some exceptional bargains. Russian Blouses are much in evidence, and they are a dressy garment—that is, the kind we handle are. Two new shipments added to the misses' line makes the display of young ladies' coats about as complete as it could be; these are also samples and priced accordingly—$2½ and up.

Eiderdown Dressing Sacques

Of all wool eiderdown; colors—cardinal, black, pink, light blue, navy and grey—neatly trimmed with black stitching, ribbon ties, size 32 to 32—89c.
